The Swingtips bring 1940's swing into the 21st century

From the swingin' 40's to the 21st century, that irresistible flavor of music we call "swing" is made even more tantalizing by The Swingtips, a nationally renowned ensemble from Phoenix, Arizona.

This multitalented, six-piece band's television appearances attest to its versatility and broad appeal. The Swingtips were featured on MTV at the Hard Rock Hotel in Las Vegas, followed by an invitation to play for MSNBC. The band, which includes a three-piece horn section, is also featured regularly at Disney World in Florida.

The Swingtips' original sound is being hailed as the next generation of jiving, jumping Swing music and the most innovative style to emerge in recent years. The Swingtips group creates an atmosphere that fuses music and dance together for any size crowd, perfect for all ages.

Not a dancer? The music of The Swingtips stands on its own and is enjoyable for concerts and just about any other sort of engagement where first-rate, high-quality music is called for. But don't just take our word for it. Here's what members of their audiences and other satisfied customers and listeners are saying:

- "Go ahead, try not to dance while The Swingtips are playing." – The Rep Entertainment Guide
- "Excellent, original, top-notch swing material!" – Hep Cat Records, Orange, CA
- "One of our favorite swing bands." – Disney World, Orlando, FL
- "One of the most musically original and professional swing bands." – Hard Rock Hotel, Las Vegas, NV
- "The Swingtips, a favorite band among swing enthusiasts, dancers and jazz lovers alike. While the current swing phase is sweeping the nation and cities are scuttling to find a decent swing band, Phoenix has already made its mark with The Swingtips. The pictures they paint continue to set them apart from other shlock swing bands." – Link Magazine

The Swingtips will perform Saturday night at Andrews Park.
